School Memories: Writing activity

Take a minute to think about your favorite school memory. It can be a specific project you liked or a topic you liked learning about or even a book one of your teachers read to the class. Write a short paragraph describing this memory. After your finished pass the paper to one of the members in your table group. Make sure everyone in the group has someone else's paragraph to look at. Go through and read the other student's paragraph. After you read the paragraph, on a separate piece of paper, write three things you liked about the person's paragraph and two things they could fix. When you are finished you can all talk about your memories together!
